In Search of a True “Irish” Setter

I was fortunate enough to take an 18 day trip to Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland in June. On my list of things to see was a true “Irish” Setter. So I kept my eyes open as we traveled from Belfast through Derry, Galway, Cork, Blarney, Killarney and finally Dublin. I looked in the countryside, villages, towns and cities. I saw lots of the typical pet dogs you would see here and I saw many border collies (needed to herd all the sheep). I asked residents along the way who said they rarely saw an Irish. So disappointing to see no Irish Setters in Ireland!

Finally the departure day came. As I was walking out of the hotel in Dublin to board the bus to the airport, a gentleman walked by with his Irish Setter! He said very few breeders (if any?) are left in Ireland. Irish Setters come from England or the States.

So I did get to see a true “Irish” Setter (at least one living in Ireland). But it seems that the best place to see our beloved dog is right here at home!

Bits and Pieces

Well another Irish weekend is in the books, with back to back specialties and two supported all breed shows. At this time, we are figuring a small profit somewhere in the $150.00 range. The reason I cannot be exact at this time comes down to the cost of the awards. The cooler bags were given that were ordered with the National Veteran's gifts. The toys were the large order that I placed to have for all the events as we had to have the toys for agility. The buckets and food dishes were purchased 2 years ago, and the trophies for the two supported shows were also included. I never break it down between the supported and the specialties, but I need to figure out how many toys and towels were used as I still have towels left over as well as some toys and bags. I am getting too old for this, lol and running out of storage room! I need a basement like the Lindeman's!

Our next events are the upcoming agility trials, September 21-23rd, and October 26-28th. There is a sign-up sheet circulating so please mark when you are available. I am waiting for the list to compile so I can fill in as needed. The agility trials are a much greater financial success than either the specialties or the field trail, and so much less work!!! Please add your name to the volunteer list as the September trial is just around the corner!

These events are closely followed by the November 11th Hunt Test and the November 17-18th Field Trials. Busy, busy, busy!!

Thanks again to all that helped with our specialties. Mary, the pizza idea was great, and sure helped with the preparation and serving. I think everyone was pleased. The raffle made over $400.00 which put us in the black and not the red, thanks to the Lindeman's raffle preparation.

The next meetings are schedules for September 15th and October 20th at Ferfolia's. There will be updates on upcoming events, but try to volunteer! We need you!

Jackie
